

HOPE OF THE SOUTH

Ralph Stone Thinks Its Solidity

Is Crumbling.

DELAWARE MAY GO OUR WAY

The Democratic Scheme of Disfranchisement Will Not Work in This Campaign.

"The republicans of Michigan, of course, do not deny that a portion of Michigan's electoral vote will be cast for Grover Cleveland, but we may find comfort in the fact that the democratic theft by which this made possible will be neutralized by the little state of Delaware," said Ralph Stone, a young attorney of this city, a member of the law firm of Cutchinson & Stone, and a native Delawarean. "Delaware, to be sure, casts but three electoral votes, but those are sufficient to offset the congressional districts which the democrats have any show of carrying in Michigan. I have word from my father this morning—he is taking an active part in the campaign in Delaware—and he says that unless some new devilry is hatched, we shall get a moderately fair election, and if we succeed in that we shall win." Delaware, you know, is noted for its peach, its large car and ship-building establishments, but more than all for its decayed politics. Bayard, Cleveland's secretary of state, is the parent of a mass of inept legislation, regulating the machinery of elections, under which the democrats, although in a pronounced minority, have been enabled to control the state—that is why my father says that if they are able to get a moderately fair election the republicans will carry Delaware. Mr. Henry C. Robinson, the leading banker of Wilmington, Delaware's metropolis, a city of the size of Grand Rapids, who spent last week in this city, told me that although the republicans were making no boastful claims publicly, yet they were confident of carrying the state for Harrison and Bond. I learn from United States Senator Higgins, the first republican senator from Delaware, and under whom I studied law, that the party is in better condition than it has ever been, that the voters are nearly all qualified, that the democrats are driven to the wall, their corrupt practices exposed, and a feeling of confidence prevails the republican party. In Delaware, you know, the payment of a poll tax is a pre-requisite to voting. You must show your tax receipt when you register. This is according to Bayard's law of 1873. This is how the democrats get in their fine work. The tax collector, under the law, sits only a few days in each district. Democrats never go to him to pay their poll taxes, but the party pays them and the party workers distribute the receipts in blocks.

Practically disfranchised. Republicans, however, must find the tax collector, tender their money and secure their receipts. But the time the collector is required to sit is not long enough to receive one-half the taxes, and those who are able to apply are hindered and delayed by every device known to the ingenuity of the democratic politician. Thousands of republicans are disfranchised by this inequitable law. Even long suffering human nature yields at times, and not infrequently the democratic collector needs police protection. The people of Michigan would think it a strange sight to see American citizens, in every way qualified to vote, standing in deep around a tax collector, with money in their outstretched hands, almost begging for the privilege of paying their taxes, and the collector coolly giving his horse and shutting up his office because the very brief time prescribed by law for the receiving of taxes had expired. These citizens cannot vote. They are disfranchised because they cannot show tax receipts at the polls. They are republicans. But the same collector sits up late at night behind his desk, and makes out receipts for democrats, and democratic henchmen distribute them to democratic voters who don't pay a cent for them. That is how the democrats have held Delaware in the democratic fold.

TO YOUNG REPUBLICANS.

William Alden Smith Exhorts Them to Support Their Ticket.

William Alden Smith was a few moments late in arriving at the Lincoln club rooms last night to speak to the Young Republican club. Charles McGill called the meeting to order and stated that the speaker of the evening was not yet present and he would call upon Dr. J. B. Griswold to make the opening speech. Dr. Griswold was in the back of the room, and the call was unexpected, but he arose promptly, pulled off his mackintosh and turned down his trousers legs and proceeded to talk. He said he had never made a political speech in his life, but always had believed he could make one if he was given time to prepare. He had always been a republican, and he was now present to tell some of the young men present why he was a republican. Every man who had a political faith or a religious faith should be able to give a reason for it. He was about to give his reasons when the door opened and the speaker of the evening appeared. He was introduced by Charles McGill and spoke as follows:

"I accepted the call to come here without any reserve. I came because I love to mingle with the young men of the political community. There seemed to be an apathy in the ranks of both parties, but the result will be a most overwhelming victory for the republican party. There never was a campaign when the republican party deserved success more than in this. I do not want to be understood as saying that the republican party possessed all that is good and the democrats all that is bad. In the walks of daily life it is hard to distinguish the one from the other. But in the matter of economic questions we differ widely. There is no doubt but there is a difference in the personnel of the two parties. An incident occurred four years ago that burned the truth into my heart. I was on a joint committee of republicans and democrats appointed to decorate Hartman's hall for the two state conventions. The republicans placed on the walls the pictures of Lincoln, Garfield, Grant and Sherman, and the democrats placed on the walls the pictures of the stars and stripes and saviors of the union. The democratic committee came along the next day and took down the pictures and placed them under the stage. They placed upon the walls the pictures of Grover Cleveland, Thomas A. Hendricks and Ben M. Harrison, and then they raised their arms to defend the nation. I wondered that they did not tear down the old flag and put it out of sight."

"The policy of the republican party has placed into the hands of the government enough money to pay current expenses. The policy of the party has done more for the nation in the past thirty years than the democratic party has ever done."

He gave statistics to show how the prosperity of the nation had been brought about by the policy of the republican party. He said there is no restriction to exports. The talk that the markets of the world are closed to us on account of the tariff is false. What the tariff did was to shut out the products of the half paid labor of Europe. If the European manufacturers would pay labor the same wages paid here they may send in their goods. The United States is willing to meet them in an equal market with equal conditions. America would never throw open freely to all the world the best market on earth. He touched upon the financial policy of the party and compared it with the "dog tail," "red tag," and "wild-cat" currency of the democratic party. He closed with an earnest appeal to the young men to do their duty next Tuesday by voting for the candidates of the party that stands honest money, for patriotism, for protection, for truth and for integrity.

GOING ALL ONE WAY.

Senator Stockbridge Says Michigan is Republican.

Senator Stockbridge was a guest at the Morton yesterday. He was on his way to Muskegon, where he spoke last night. He will return to the city this afternoon and assist Congressman Burrows tonight in tearing large irregular holes in the democratic prospects.

"Are we going to carry Michigan this fall?" repeated Senator Stockbridge in a reproachful tone in answer to a question asked by a reporter for THE HERALD. "Of course we are going to carry Michigan. John T. Rich will be elected by 10,000 or 15,000 plurality, and the remainder of the ticket will be right with him. So far I have yet to learn of a single republican old soldier that will vote for 'Comrade' Ben Morse. Ben does not appeal to the soldier vote now as he did when he ran for justice of the supreme court. The old boys understand his methods and purposes better."

We shall have ten of the electors again, and I'm inclined to think we shall have twelve. I'm not willing to concede them more than two; but it's barely possible they will get four. They will probably get the elector at large in the eastern district and one other. The western district will choose a republican elector. I believe there will be almost a republican landslide in this state. If I cannot defeat Hecker in the First district, it will be by a very close vote. I regard O'Donnell as sure of election in the Second. Burrows will have 5,000 or 6,000 majority in the Third, and Dr. Thomas will carry the Fourth by 1,000. This district was cut out especially to be democratic. We shall have a good working majority in both houses of the state legislature. That is an assured thing."

To me there is everything to encourage republicans in this campaign. Mr. Harrison will carry New Jersey and Connecticut, and if he does we can win without New York. Indiana will undoubtedly give Harrison a fair majority. It is true that there are a few sore-headed politicians in the state who are disgraced because they didn't get offices, but their influence is more than offset by the good administration he has given the people."

MISTAKEN IN THE MAN.

A Republican Veteran Resents the Impudence of Judge Morse.

Editor HERALD—Enclosed you will find a letter, accompanied by opinions of the press, sent me by the Hon. Allen B. Morse, democratic candidate for governor of this state. I do not dispute the right of Comrade Morse to vindicate his character where assailed, nor his right to establish his friendship for the old veteran soldier, who with him crossed the Rhine in response to the call "On to Richmond." But in fraternal charity and loyalty to my comrades of the G. A. R. I do deny him the right to appear in the heat of a political campaign when known to be a mistake. I must know that we as an organization are defamed for participating in the present struggle for political power, but as individuals we are free to exercise our political privileges and vote for the men and with the party which we believe will best promote the interests of the American people, and especially the old soldiers who fought under the old flag in defense of the Union. I never have had the pleasure of meeting Comrade Morse, who at this particular time seems to be desirous of retaining the good graces of the old soldiers, and why he should be so anxious to set me right with him I cannot conceive. He must have made a mistake in the man. If Comrade Morse has such a burning love for the old soldiers, why has he since his conversion to the democratic faith so often withheld his support whenever one of our worthy number presented himself as a candidate for a political office—republican ticket. It looks very much as if he had joined the democratic party merely and why he has identified himself with a political party who are noted the country over for antagonizing every measure designed for the benefit of the disabled old soldiers; and why arrayed against us in an attempt to defeat that gallant soldier and able statesman, Benjamin Harrison? Will Comrade Morse vote for him? Echo answers, never. His voice is not heard while stamping the state in behalf of the soldier candidate for president, but rather in behalf of those who fired bullets into our faces, and those who remained at home and sent substitutes. If Comrade Morse has the interests of the old soldiers so much at heart, why has he, since 1872, withheld his support from the defenders of the union and its flag, and followed its fortunes from Fort Sumpter to Appomattox, and without a doubt, under all the aid possible to elect Grover Cleveland, who, when he had an opportunity to relieve the sufferings of our wounded comrades, and destitute widows and orphans, defiled the sacred pen by writing vile messages assuaged with gall and venom spite, and wrapped up in vile epithets and insinuations against every old soldier who wore the blue. No, Comrade Morse. You make a great mistake in supposing me ready to sacrifice principle and manhood, and do for a cause which I detest. My first vote was cast while at the front for that grand and noble martyr, Abraham Lincoln—a true friend to the soldier, and on the 31st inst. I expect to cast one more ballot for the men who are pledged to uphold the institutions of this, the greatest and grandest nation on the face of the earth.

ANANIAS IS CONFIDENT.

But He Didn't Impress the Pool Seller With His Eloquence.

Adolphus Ananias Ellis was in the city yesterday. He dropped in upon the democratic committee man to learn what was being done in his interest. In the afternoon he visited the pool room in the Morton house. He read the card "Ellis & Co." suspended from the blackboard, and advancing to the young man, seated behind the table, he extended his hand and exclaimed: "How are you; my name's Ellis. I'm candidate for attorney general on two tickets. I like to know everybody named Ellis; shake again!" As soon as the young man had recovered his breath and the possession of his hand, he looked coldly at Ananias and inquired: "What are your chances?" "Splendid," ejaculated Ananias. "I will carry this state by 25,000 plurality. I am the strongest man on the ticket—the most popular. I will run ahead of Morse 5,000 votes. I am strong everywhere by voting for the candidates, but I'll get more votes than he does. Elected! Well, I should say I will be elected!" Then Ananias departed, but the pool man still continued to offer odds that he would not be elected.

TALKED TO HOLLANDERS.

The Hon. Gerrit J. Diekema Talks Republicanism to His Countrymen.

The Hon. Gerrit J. Diekema addressed a large republican meeting in Vander Stolp's hall last evening. He talked in the Holland language, and his audience was composed wholly of Hollanders. There was not a vacant seat in the hall. His discussion was mainly on the tariff, and he used strong arguments to prove that under the protective laws the workingmen were better off than under free trade. He also used the report of Labor Commissioner Peck, a staunch democrat, appointed by a democratic governor, to show the condition of the working men through the country and how they had been benefited by the McKinley bill. These figures, which he said could not be disputed, proved beyond a doubt that protection is the thing for the laboring man; that the nomination of Benjamin Harrison was the culmination of the McKinley law which was one of the republican principles, and if the workingmen desired to vote to best protect themselves in the future, he advised him to vote for General Harrison.

ELECTION BETS.

What the Pool Sellers Offer on the Candidates.

The latest election pools at the Morton house are as follows:

Harrison, Diekema, Wolcott, Belknap, 4 to 1.

Harrison, Diekema, Wolcott, Richardson, 8 to 1.

Harrison, Diekema, McKnight, Belknap, 5 to 1.

Harrison, Diekema, McKnight, Richardson, 10 to 1.

Harrison, Ellis, Wolcott, Belknap, 7 to 1.

Harrison, Ellis, Wolcott, Richardson, 15 to 1.

Harrison, Ellis, McKnight, Belknap, 7 to 1.

Harrison, Ellis, McKnight, Richardson, 15 to 1.

Cleveland, Diekema, Wolcott, Belknap, 5 to 1.

Cleveland, Diekema, Wolcott, Richardson, 8 to 1.

Cleveland, Ellis, Wolcott, Belknap, 7 to 1.

Cleveland, Ellis, McKnight, Belknap, 12 to 1.

Cleveland, Ellis, McKnight, Richardson, 7 to 1.

Cleveland, Ellis, McKnight, Richardson, 8 to 1.

Other bets were as follows: 2 to 1 Cleveland and Diekema don't win; 2 to 1 Harrison and Ellis don't win; 2 to 1 Chase and Hooker don't win; 2 to 1 Mathews and Newton don't win; 5 to 2 Peck and Mathews don't win; 5 to 1 Peck and Richardson don't win; 3 to 1 McKnight and Morse don't win; 3 to 1 Morse and Altgelt don't win; 4 to 1 Bonan and Morse don't win; 3 to 1 Lamoreaux and Harrison don't win; 3 to 1 Cleveland and Belknap don't win; 3 to 1 Harrison and Richardson don't win.

Speeches by Uhl and Doran.

Ex-Mayor Uhl, Senator Peter Doran and others addressed a democratic gathering last night in Archer hall. Ex-Alderman Dorman presided and the usual democratic ghosts were paraded before the audience in their usual hideous aspect.

Kate Dorman in Keep Still.

"What," the clerk of the Grand Street house, smiled faintly at a hot political discussion going on in the office of the Grand Street house last night and said: "It's just like this all the time and I've come to the conclusion I'm a devilish smart man. I know enough to keep still about a subject I know nothing about."

Sam Cary Is Confident.

"S. F. Cary of Ohio." That's the name of the great exponent of everything registered at Sweet's yesterday. He was on his way from Cadillac to St. Johns on a campaign tour. General Cary is 79 years old—old enough to know better; but he declared yesterday that Grover Cleveland was already as good as elected. "I can't see any reason why the democratic party should not be confident," he said. "Cleveland will carry New York, and to carry New York is to be elected. He will probably carry Indiana too, and receive at least seven of the electoral votes of Michigan. That means election. Why shouldn't the democrats be hopeful?"

Notice to Scandinavians.

All Scandinavians are invited to attend the prohibition mass meeting at the Swedish mission church, corner of Broadway and First street Saturday, November 5, 1892. Chapt. Chris. Anderson, from Chicago, will be speaker. Meeting begins at 7:30 sharp.

Political Paragraphs.

The Ninth ward republican club will hold a meeting at McCallan's block on West Fulton street Friday evening. The Young Men's McKinley club will meet in Lincoln club rooms at 7 o'clock tonight, and from there march to Hartman's hall in a body.

Norton Fitch of Sparta was a caller at republican headquarters yesterday. W. D. Fuller will address people's party meeting at the Swedish hall Friday night.

The populists are disappointed in securing Ellis to address a people's party meeting. Captain Anderson of Chicago will address a prohibition meeting at Sparta Sunday afternoon. He will speak in the Swedish language.

The Rev. J. W. Russell and the Rev. J. Snashall will address a prohibition meeting at Martin's school house November 3.

The Young Men's Republican club will attend the Burrows meeting tonight in a body. The club has some new yells which will stir the blood of all good republicans.

CITY HALL FLOODED.

The Basement Filled With Water From a Broken Pipe.

Another leak in the pipes of the city hall is pouring a flood of water into the basement. This time the leak appeared to be the cold air flue in the basement back of the boiler. The floor at the foot of the stairs is under water so that planks are laid down on which to walk. It is supposed that the discharge pipe of the elevator has sprung a leak somewhere in the walls of the building. There has always been water in the basement of the city hall and R. K. Putnam, the engineer, spent a great deal of time last summer in arranging things so as to carry off the water from his coal bin and now he has another stream of water to contend with this winter.

Junk in the City Hall.

A heap of old household goods has occupied a conspicuous place in a corner of the office of the director of the poor for more than a month. The heap consists of a conglomeration of clothing and furniture of the poorer sort. There it has laid to cheer the minds of the unfortunate creatures who are forced to visit the place. No attempt has been made to store the goods in any kind of order. To a stranger it looks as if the city government had started a third rate junk shop in the city hall. It is said the clerk in the poor department has bought some of the furniture and will take it to the residence of the director. The goods belonged to an old woman who was ejected from a house on the west side.

Lumber Camp for the Fair.

Dunning Bros., lumbermen of Menominee, have secured space from the Michigan state fair commission for the exhibition of a complete lumber camp in miniature at the world's fair. It will be placed in the forestry exhibit and will occupy a space fourteen feet square. Standing timber, men at work, horses and oxen, sleighs, lumber camps, saw mills, etc., will be represented. A photograph of the design will soon be sent to Secretary Roberts of the Michigan commission.

Generous Railroad Clerks.

Clerks in the G. & A. I. general offices work under the principle that it is better to give than to receive. Yesterday they were busy collecting all their cast-off clothing, which is given to W. McCormick, superintendent of water tanks on the G. & A. I. He distributes it among the needy of northern Michigan.

Gossip of the Lobbies.

L. Grant, C. A. Welch and O. R. Herrick, of Belding, dined at the Morton yesterday.

G. S. Hampden, of Petoskey, state game warden, is at the Morton. Business is rather dull in his department, because nearly everything that may not lawfully be killed now, is taking its winter vacation.

Of the election bets made so far at the Morton house, outside of the pool rooms, nearly every one has proved a "bluff" and the money has afterwards been withdrawn.

Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Holden, of Traverse City, dined at the Morton yesterday.

A. A. Ellis, of Ionia, was a guest at the New Livingston yesterday. His majority did not accompany him.

Benjamin Vosper, an Ionia attorney and G. E. Nichols another denizen of the habitat of Morse and Ellis, dined at the Morton yesterday.

Theron S. Osborne, of Shelby, is at the New Livingston. He is accompanied by his wife.

H. T. Chapin of Schenectady, N. Y., bet $300 on Harrison in the Morton house pool room last night.

E. J. Morley, of Rochester, alias "Carload" Morley, is a guest at the Morton. He is a hopeful as ever concerning the furniture trade and his new nickel mine.

S. H. Row of Lansing, C. F. Gates of South Branch and Otto Rufus of Haddon are at the Morton.

Amusements.

Next Sunday evening, "Ole Oleon," the Swedish dialect comedy drama which is well known to the patrons of this theater, will begin a week's visit at the Grand. Some changes have been made in the company since last season and Manager Salter claims that they have resulted in a betterment of the production. McAlpin, who plays "Ole," seems to have the season's comedy character. Louise Arnet playing the Irishwoman, and the soubrette part is cared for by Dolly Foster, who is a very clever woman.

Pauline Batcheller makes the Keeley cure tempting, indeed, in a descriptive song down at the Grand this week. The company is attracting large and well pleased audiences at every performance.

There will be a matinee at Smith's today.

The dedication of the new Powers theater is announced for November 17, and the attraction which will do the honors on that occasion is the Manolia-Mason company. They will present a comedy drama. Marion Manolia has been one of the prime favorites of the season in the country, and the courtship between her and handsome Jack Mason, who was leading man at the Boston museum, received a wide publicity a few months ago. It will be their first appearance in Grand Rapids.

Furnishes Distilled Water.

It is not generally known that the city furnishes druggists of the city with distilled water, but such is the case. It is not an uncommon sight to see jugs of water carried from the basement of the city hall to the various drug stores in the city. The water is taken from the pipes back of the boilers used for heating the building.
